Objectives of the Course	The aim of the course is to examine and teach the basic concepts of crime theory within a certain system and to provide students with the ability to make case studies.
Short Course Content	In the General Provisions of Criminal Law course, the concepts of punishment and crime, the unjust structure of the completed intentional offence, the material (especially causality and objective attribution) and moral (especially the differentiation of intent and possible intent from conscious negligence) elements of typicality are examined. This is followed by an examination of the elements of illegality and culpability of the completed intentional offence. Subsequently, possible cases of error in terms of these elements should be analysed. Afterwards, the structure and elements of the attempt responsibility of the perpetrator who cannot complete the intentional offence should be discussed. Other topics of the General Provisions of Criminal Law course are the intentional negligent offence of participation and negligent offence. Finally, it will be necessary to determine the commission of more than one offence and the aggregation of penalties in these cases.
